Well-planned conferences and meetings are an essential part of developing your business and staff. Retro Rockets is designed to complement your conference programme to ensure that it delivers the maximum benefit for your company and your staff.

Your guests will be energised and invigorated giving them the opportunity to benefit from a break in the schedule, re-focus concentration and develop their relationships with their colleagues in a co-operative environment – all whilst having lots of fun!

Whilst Retro Rockets encourages the development of skills that can be taken back to the workplace it is also designed to be a fun and rewarding experience for all.

From the launch pad to the stars (or as close as you can get!), each team of wannabe NASA space engineers must summon every scrap of creativity and resourcefulness to design, assemble and then launch a water pressure powered rocket model to fly further than the opposition teams!

An intriguing and quick team-based activity that literally finishes on a high!
